Grayling Boys At Scout Jamboree

HAVING GOOD TIME IN WASHINGTON

Bob Herbison and John Henry Peterson Write Home From Boy Scout Jamboree

Following is an interesting letter by Bob Herbison, who, with John Henry Peterson, is attending the Boy Scout Jamboree that is being held in Washington, D. C., written to his father Louis Herbison. The boys are having a big time and we are sure our readers will enjoy these letters:

June 29, 1937

Dear Dad:
Well I thought I would drop you a letter and let you know how we are.

It is raining hard and as there is no floor in our tent there is about a half inch under my bed.

It has rained every day we have been here and when the sun does shine it is hot enough to roast a chicken.

We are camped in Virginia on Columbia Island next to the Washington airport and the airplanes are taking off and landing all the time. Arlington cemetery is about half a mile from here. The Potomac river is just across the road, and boy, is it dirty!

Today our troop went by boat to Mount Vernon. There were about 1900 scouts on the boat. We saw the room where Washington died, and lots more.

Yesterday we went to the Smithsonian Institute and saw lots of interesting things. After that we went to the Capitol and saw the House of Representatives.

There is supposed to be about 300 representatives and there were about 20 there and some were sleeping and reading and doing nothing.

Some of the boys went to a ball game today and our troop is going tomorrow.

Boy, you should see this camp! There are about 5,000 tents along the river. We have good meals and have a good time. Last night we started up for the Lincoln Memorial and a lady picked us up and took us all around the city and brought us back to camp. People sure are swell down here; they will pick you up and go a long way out of their way to take you some place.

Well, I guess that is all for this time. How do you like my writing paper? I got 5 envelopes and 5 sheets for a dime.

Well, I will close. Please write. Love, Bob.

John Henry's Letter

Washington, D. C.

June 30, 1937

Dear Mother, Dad and Cork:
I will attempt to tell you the highlights of our activities so far and just what it's all about.

The first day here we just were so hot and dirty that we went right down to a swimming pool for a couple of hours. While we were there a bad storm came up and it thundered and rained and lightninged terrible. It made about two inches of water all over the camp grounds. Our baggage was OK because someone put it under a mess tent. Well we slept in headquarters tent that night. The next day we moved. I helped put up our regular tent and then I was moved down to the band and had to put up another tent, and they were big 16 ft. by 16 ft. army tents at that.

We are camped on Columbia Island, Virginia, right across the Mt. Vernon Memorial highway from the Potomac. We can easily see Lincoln's and Washington's memorials as they are right opposite us and my bed runs parallel to the highway about 10 feet from it. In behind us is the Potomac tidal basin and on the other side of that is the Washington airport which is the fourth busiest in the United States and a plane comes in every five minutes and each time a siren rings. There is also a dirigible (Goodyear) and an army field. Then up on a hill behind that is Lee's mansion in plain view, as well as the tomb of the unknown soldier in Arlington.

We (Kirby and I) hitch-hiked out to Mt. Vernon the first night and we got a ride with some Washington folks who told us all about the towns we went thru. We saw a lot of historical things.

Yesterday we went to a baseball game free between Boston and Washington. Lefty Grove and Wes Ferrel pitched; it was called in the 12th at 2-all because of darkness.

The band practices two hours in the morning and then we are free the remainder of the day. We played for the region "7" flag raising and the official opening of the jamboree in that region (Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois and Indiana) and tonight we play at the arena around the Washington monument for the opening of the whole works.

There are 26,000 here from the United States and 500 from 22 foreign countries. I suppose it's all in the papers; save them, won't you?

The night before last I got a ride with a lady all over downtown Washington and she told me about all the government buildings. Boy, talk about southern hospitality.

It sure is funny the way different boys from different sections talk. On the way we met twelve cars on one train from Texas and they said, "Who you all fraam?" You almost laugh at them.

I am in a tent with 2 or 3 fellows from Illinois, 3 or 4 from Indiana, and me from Michigan, and we all talk different. Boy does the money ever go fast here!

We are camped right across from an Indianapolis council, Detroit council, Illinois council, besides Saginaw, Bay City, Jackson; also Chicago.

I am in the "Black Jack" patrol and boy we have fun. A guy from Indianapolis who has 73 merit badges (and I only have five) is our patrol leader.

Non-partisan News Letter

Lansing—Six months of history at the state capitol have done much to reveal the personality of Frank Murphy, governor.

Working quietly with apparently no effort to assume the Roosevelt role of aggressive leadership, Governor Murphy obtained results from the legislature that surprised his critics.

One month ago prospects for a July 1 record of achievement were dismal indeed. The two houses were caught in a quagmire over civil service; labor relation bills appeared in a dewildering succession.

The one tendency in legislation which appeared early in the session and continued until the hectic night of adjournment was an indulgence to help home districts solve their local problems of government by granting liberal state aid.

Murphy's Philosophy

Differing from President Roosevelt in his philosophy of government, Murphy believes in the traditional balance of government. He has kept "hands off" the legislature even to the point where responsible party leaders charged him with being "aloof." He considers that the judiciary should retain its independence. He exalts the function of the executive branch.

Declining to impose a "must" program on the legislature, Murphy invited leaders to hear his views. He let it be known that legislative prerogatives would be respected by the executive office.

The results were obvious. The legislature went on a spending spree, adding approximately $25 million to the previously record high budget of the state. Only two new important sources of income were added: (1) A use tax designed to obtain revenue from out-of-state sales, and (2) higher liquor prices through a 55 per cent gross profit instead of 40 per cent.

If he signs the new labor relations bill over the protest of the U.A.W. and the Conference for Protection of Civil Rights, mass picketing of plants by non-employees will become illegal. (The Monroe incident would have been a violation of law.)

The C.I.O. thus will find its greatest weapon suddenly taken away by the state.

As the final bill was passed only through his personal pleadings, Murphy is again at the crossroads.

Profits From Liquor

The legislature's revision of state liquor regulations brought a change in basic policy.

In the name of obtaining needed revenue to enlarge hospital facilities, the legislature authorized the state liquor commission to increase the state's "take" in profit from 40 to 55 per cent. This additional 15 per cent is expected to bring in about three millions annually.

Whereas the Fitzgerald administration hewed to the line of regulating traffic, the Murphy policy has become that of increasing profit. Higher prices will appear soon. Half of the special liquor dispensaries are to be closed off, and about 30 new state stores are to be opened. At present about 75 per cent of all liquor sold is handled by non-state agencies. But Commissioner V. F. Gormley plans to reverse this percentage.

This is best illustrated by the labor relations bill which as finally adopted was the fourth one to bear the numerical title of "House Bill 571." First came the original bill sponsored by the governor, drafted by his legal adviser with the aid of the attorney general's office.

Labor objected to a requirement of mediation before the right to strike, so a substitute bill was brought out of the house labor committee with the governor's personal endorsement. This measure is in action, and errant night clubs have been closed.

Furthermore, sale of beer to youngsters under the age of 21 was outlawed in the same statute that signalized the return of the saloon bar to Michigan.

The senate sought a com-

Chamber Commerce Getting Organized

The need for a chamber of commerce is manifest by the enthusiastic response to get one in operation here as quickly as possible. There are so many matters that require intelligent and constructive handling right at this time that it seems that this community has been neglecting its own interests for a long time.

Inquiries are coming in until correspondence to reply to them gets to be a real job. If they are neglected those sending in the inquiries are going to pass us up and go elsewhere for their needs. Only recently an inquiry addressed to the Grayling Postmaster was passed over to Royal A. Wright, temporary president of the C. of C. The writer wanted a cottage for over the 4th. A cottage was arranged for and the family from Ohio came here and now they want to buy a place on the AuSable. This is only one of the hundreds of reasons why Grayling should get busy and get our C. of C. busy on the job.

If you know of any cottages for rent or sale on our lakes and streams please call Mr. Wright at phone 182 or address him at

Grayling. There are many people wanting cottages and it will be a great convenience if you will cooperate in this work.

An information booth is being constructed for the convenience of the inquiring public. It will be built of logs and be 12 x 10

cessary to provide a well-informed attendant for the booth and any volunteer offer of assistance will be appreciated.

Everyone knows that it costs times the money, it is believed, was not judiciously used.

"Little Stories for Bedtime"

by Thornton W. Burgess

THE HERALD OF MISTRESS SPRING

PETER RABBIT was sitting in the middle of the dear Old Briar Patch. Jolly, round red Mr. Sun had just begun his daily climb up in the blue, blue sky, and Peter was wondering where he would go and what he would do when he heard a sound that caused him to suddenly sit up very straight with both ears pointing right up to the sky. Peter held his breath for a minute and then he heard it again. This time he jumped straight up in the air and kicked his heels together for joy.

"Oh, Winsome, I'm So Glad You've Got Here at Last; I'm So Happy I Could Sing for Joy."

It was past the softest, sweetest whistle! It wasn't merry and it wasn't soot; it was just beautiful. And it seemed to come from everywhere and nowhere—just out of the air.

"Winsome Bluebird!" cried Peter Rabbit. "Oh, it's Winsome Bluebird! I wonder where he is! He sounds a long way off and yet he may be close by. Oh, I do wonder if I'm the first one to hear him!"

"I guess you are, Peter," said a soft voice. "I guess you are, because you see I've just arrived and I came straight to the Old Briar Patch, because I just knew that you would be looking for me and I wanted you to have the pleasure of being the first to see me. Why don't you look up in the little cherry tree over your head, Peter, and say something?"

Of course Peter felt very foolish, and he looked just as he felt, as he saw Winsome Bluebird sitting right over his head. You see that soft, beautiful voice had seemed to come from everywhere, and Peter hadn't been able to tell just where it did come from.

"Oh, Winsome!" he cried. "Oh, Winsome, I'm so glad you've got here at last! I'm so happy I could sing for joy."

"Ho, ho, Peter!" laughed Winsome Bluebird. "Do try it. I should love to hear you sing!"

Peter grinned. "Well, anyway, if I can't sing I can dance," he cried and right away began the funniest little dance that ever was. Finally he had to stop to get his breath.

"There, that's how glad I am!" he cried. "Now tell me all the news, Winsome."

"Oh, I couldn't, Peter. I couldn't tell you all. There's too much to tell and I haven't got time now. You know there are others waiting for me."

"But do tell me if Mistress Spring is most here," begged Peter.

"Of course she is! Don't you know I am her herald? I've come all the way up from down south just ahead of her to tell everybody that she is coming. You know, that is what a herald is for. I had rather be the herald of Mistress Spring than anything else in all the world." Winsome had lifted his beautiful blue wings as he said this.

"Don't go!" cried Peter. "I guess I know how you feel. It must be perfectly splendid to make everybody glad and happy as you do—I wish I could be a herald."

Winsome Bluebird laughed—the sweetest laugh. "I guess you don't need to be a herald to make people glad to see you, Peter," he said.

"Besides, you know you can be sort of a herald by telling everybody you meet that I am here."

"That's so!" Peter cried. "That's one lesson I like to be the first to see or hear you. It's great fun to see how pleased everybody is when they know that you have arrived. I—I hope nothing will happen, to a bystander, spoke up sympathetically: "Miss the train?"

The erstwhile sprinter shook his head. "Not much," he replied, weakly. "After all, I never go very chummy with it."

Comparison

Fred's English cousin was curious about things American. "Is the Mississippi as large as our Thames?" he inquired.

"Haw, haw!" laughed Fred. "As large? Say, your Thames wouldn't make a gash for our Mississippi's mouth!"

Wit and Humor

REAL DOUGH

The two tramps were stretched out on the green grass. Above them was the warm sun, beside them was a babbling brook. It was a quiet, restful, peaceful scene.

"Boy," mused the first tramp contentedly, "right now I wouldn't change places with a guy who owns a million!"

"How about five million?" asked his companion.

"Not even for five million."

"Well, how about ten million?"

The first tramp sat up. "That's different," he admitted. "Now you're talking real dough!"

NO MONEY FOR FINE

At a police court an old offender was summoned for being drunk and disorderly.

"Ten shillings of a fortnight," said the magistrate, Ireland's Own relates.

"But, sir, I've only got two shillings in the world," replied the prisoner.

"Well, you must go to gaol, then. If you hadn't spent the money on drink you would have been able to pay the fine."

BARBERSHOP BLUES

"That new barber is a highbrow," said the customer. "I could hardly follow his remarks."

"All barbers are apt to talk over their customers' heads."

PASSING ACQUAINTANCE

He sprinted valiantly, but failed to catch the train. As he walked back, mopping his streaming brow, a bystander spoke up sympathetically: "Miss the train?"

The erstwhile sprinter shook his head. "Not much," he replied, weakly. "After all, I never go very chummy with it."

Paint and Varnish Removers

PAINT and varnish removers do not actually remove a finish; their action is to soften the oils of a finish sufficiently to permit it to be wiped and scraped off. Liquid removers are a combination of solvents, such as wood alcohol, benzine, amyl acetate, and other liquids usually combined with paraffin to check evaporation. Liquid removers act quickly; usually in not more than 20 minutes. By that time paint and varnish will be so softened that they can be wiped off with a rough cloth. For old paint, a second application may be necessary, and scraping with a putty knife. With liquid removers, there is no raising of the grain of wood.

The vapors of liquid varnish removers are inflammable, and care must be taken to avoid fire. I know of one case, and it was not unusual, when this was overlooked with disastrous results. Liquid varnish remover was being used to take the finish from a table. The work was being done in a small room, and as it was winter, the windows were closed. In the middle of things the worker lighted a cigarette; there was an instant flash of fire, and the house was saved from destruction only by quick work with an extinguisher.

When using a liquid remover, there should be good ventilation to carry off the vapors, and there should be no flames nearby. To avoid trouble, a liquid varnish remover should not be used in a cellar when the heater fire is burning, nor in a kitchen with a lighted coal range; with a gas range the pilot light should be put out. With ordinary and common sense precautions, liquid varnish removers can be used with complete safety.

The use of a liquid paint and varnish remover should be followed by liberal washing with kerosene to take up the paraffin.

Certain alkalies have the effect of paint removers; for example, washing soda, trisodium phosphate, and lye. Of these, lye has the greatest disadvantage of being injurious to wood fibers, and should be used only when this effect is of no importance.

Washing soda and trisodium phosphate dissolved in water in the proportion of 1 to 3 pounds to the gallon are usually satisfactory. They may have the effect of raising the grain of wood, which calls for sandpaper after the wood has dried.

Satisfactory alkaline paint and varnish removers are on common sale as powders, to be mixed with water.

After using any alkaline paint and varnish remover, all traces should be taken off by ample rinsing with clear water.

"No doubt of that," replied the plain citizen.

Name Changed

There have been famous Cromwells in English history, but at the restoration the name of Cromwell became odious and many bearers of the name made some change so as to disguise it. Mr. Vincent Crummel, in whose company Nicholas Nickleby acted Romeo, was one man changed an illustrious name.

GROW THEIR OWN "SNOWSHOES"

Snowshoes, also called varying names, are found all over Canada and Alaska and along the Northern border of the United States. They grow their own "snowshoes." These are long, stiff hairs, which spread out from their big, splayed feet, enabling them to bound over soft snow with great ease.

News By Nosey

Last week I told you there was a great deal of activity down the river, but I had no idea there was so much going on, and so many charming folks, who are new to me, and perhaps knowing them will be of interest to you.

I dropped into the Loren Richards cabin. We may call it a cabin because it is built of logs; really it is a home! I have always thought it one of the loveliest larger cabins along the main stream of the AuSable. For years this "cabin" had stood empty; the large flowing well echoing through the vacant rooms had a ghostly sound, the place seemed sad and sort of lonely. As one walked through the grounds, one had the feeling that there should be young, gay voices and laughter to wake an accompaniment for the flowing Delco plant, as Mr. Richards told well, and give it a sort of tinkling, joyful sound. So my dreams have come true! The lovely place is occupied! This is the cabin built years ago by Paul Feldhauser for Mrs. Jeanette Hattersley of Ohio. It is situated between the Corwin cabin and Charlie Trosien's place, just above the Wakeley bridge.

Mr. and Mrs. Richards are from Lapeer; two more charming and hospitable persons cannot be found. Mrs. Richards, as I met her, could have stepped from the pages of a book entitled "Lovely Ladies of Yesteryear." These attractive flowing skirted house dresses are particularly effective on ladies of Mrs. Richards' type, then add to the picture a soft eastern voice, for Mrs. Richards is a Boston girl) and you have a picture not often found in the doorway of a log cabin of the north woods.

Mr. Richards is the perfect host! I understand he is one of our really enthusiastic fishermen, and he told me they spent nearly every week end last summer with the Stephens. (I believe they were with Mrs. Nettie Stephan). The Richards were so in love with our river that they bought a place so they might enjoy it all through the summer.

Mrs. Richards loves to fish also; she told me she has played golf but after many casting lessons from the Stephan bridge, she found her golf was ruined! However, as she put it, her golf never would be any good, and she had hopes of being a real trout fisherman!

The Richards are installing a Delco plant, as Mr. Richards told me the flow will almost takes care of their needs, but lacks
